Funding was provided by Humanities Nebraska and the National Endowment for the Humanities as part of the Coronavirus Aid, Relief and Economic Security (CARES) Act.
Activity

Discussion

Have students read the Pawnee, Omaha, Oto-Missouria page in the Nebraska Studies 1850-1874 timeline.

http://www.nebraskastudies.org/1850-1874/native-american-settlers/na-meet-the-challenges/

Then, have students discuss the following questions:

What crops did early Native Americans plant that are similar to those grown by the settlers who moved in later?
What crops are grown today in Nebraska?
Why do farmers in Nebraska raise those crops?
What are some differences in the way Pawnees farmed compared to farmers in Nebraska today?
Were Native Americans in Nebraska subsistence farmers or commercial farmers?

Have students read the Conflicts Among the Tribes & Settlers page in the Nebraska Studies 1850-1874 timeline.

Then, have students discuss the following questions:

How did Native Americans view the arrival of white Europeans?

Why did the many of the Pawnee decide to help the U.S. Army?

Why did the Lakota dislike the people traveling through Nebraska on their way to Oregon and California?

What were the two main goals of the Fort Laramie Treaty of 1851?

Have students read the following page in the Nebraska Studies 1850-1874 timeline.

Earth Lodges and Tipis

Suggest that students use the Resources for Nebraska Studies to find photographs of different dwellings, houses, or tipis. Students may also use the National Archives Photograph Analysis Worksheet in the Resources section at the end of this document.

After reading the selections, students should write short descriptions of each of the types of Native American homes and then write an analysis on each type of home discussing the advantages and disadvantages of each. Students could also be asked to write about how each type of dwelling reflected the needs and building materials available for different geographic areas.

Then have students compare and contrast European settlers’ homes with Native American homes during the mid-to-late-1800s.

The Process

1. On a map, have students indicate the location of Native Americans living in Nebraska in the latter part of the 19th century. Have them highlight the group that lived in the region in which they currently reside. More advanced students may wish to use the National Archives Map Analysis Worksheet in the Resources section at the end of this document.

2. Have students read the Native Americans & Settlers section of the 1850-1874 timeline on Nebraska Studies: http://www.nebraskastudies.org/1850-1874/native-american-settlers/

Read and discuss the effects of the Homestead Act on Native Americans and settlers.

3. Have students compare and contrast the effects of the Homestead Act on the lives of the Native Americans and the settlers. Have students chart this information on the chalkboard.

4. Ask students to accumulate information to support their assessment of how Native Americans viewed the Homestead Act. Direct students to write an editorial from the perspective of a Native American concerning his/her view of the Homestead Act. Tell them to support their positions with factual information.
LESSON PLAN
Our Perspective of the Homestead Act

Learning Advice

1. Review the Nebraska State Historical website at https://history.nebraska.gov/ and familiarize students with the Nebraska History magazine located at: https://history.nebraska.gov/publications/nebraska-history-magazine

   Teachers/students can order copies of the magazine from the NSHS or check with their local library to see if they have copies.

2. Review the contents of the Nebraska Department of Education Social Science Resource Home Page and review the links with students. https://www.education.ne.gov/socialstudies/

3. Review the format for an editorial and then model how to write one.

4. Review the chart (Step 3 in The Process) listing the similarities and differences between the homesteaders and the Native Americans with the students. The chart will provide students with a visual image they can refer to when writing their editorials.

Conclusion

Student will become aware and be able to explain the ramifications of the Homestead Act for the Native Americans and the settlers.

Assessment

Students may be graded on the map exercise, oral discussion, and written editorial. See a sample rubric in the Resources section at the end of this document. Teachers may wish to develop their own rubric to meet their individual needs.
